

Threads of tranquillity

Quilt India Foundation considers it a privilege to feature a curated collection of Art Quilts "Threads of Tranquillity" at the Peace Conference organised by Sri Vishnu Mohan foundation and Sri Gnana Advaita Peetam. These art quilts beautifully intertwine the themes of peace and a green, sustainable environment and tell different stories of the human journey while representing the interrelatedness of all life.

The Tree of Life – represents the interconnectedness of all living beings who share the resources and space available on earth. The bumble bee is as important as the serpent and the bat and the squirrel. Each organism has its place in the ecosystem. This Art Quilt was made by a group of around twenty quilters from Chennai during the covid pandemic.

The Wave – Our two large natural resources are water and land. This art quilt provokes you to think about the indiscriminate exploitation that may result in irrevocable fissures and cracks that may never heal. Can we be more responsible and look after our fragile Earth?

The Web– Each organism is dependent on and influenced by others within the ecosystem and yet they all seek the ultimate freedom represented by the dragonfly. It also highlights the idea that every action and interaction within this web has ripple effects, emphasizing our shared responsibility in maintaining peace and balance in nature. The Journey - A seemingly complicated and intertwined collection of translucent fabrics allowing an occasional peep inside, this art quilt signifies those parts of our life that are open to help from others and those lives where we get to contribute. An evocative piece that reminds us to open our hearts and doors to enrich the lives of others around us.

The Longing – A quiet call to action protecting the lone tree, this art quilt symbolises hope that comes from a longing for harmonious existence of technological progress and natural resources.

This exhibition serves as a powerful reminder of the profound connections between Art, Peace, and the Environment. May "Threads of Tranquillity" inspire you to embrace sustainable practices and foster peace in your community and beyond.
